Langley Hospice Society & Foundation

Annual Report

April 1, 2018 - March 31, 2019

Executive Director's Report

This past year has been one of growth and transition, and the Langley Hospice Society is grateful for a passionately engaged team of staff and volunteers throughout the organization. Their active engagement and the generous support we received from donors and our community partners help to ensure we can continue to provide compassionate care and support to meet the palliative and bereavement needs of our growing community.

Our bereavement support programs and services serve children as young as two or three years of age, up to adults of any age and stage, and is provided free of charge, no matter the circumstances surrounding the deaths of their loved ones. Individuals can access one-to-one and group support programs, as well as other unique and client-centred programs that include: the Supportive Steps Walking Group, Cooking Together, Grief Yoga, Loss-Specific Coffee Mornings, a Kids Connect drop-in program and various age-specific day and summer camp programs.

Our Child & Youth Program offers supports that are recreation, art and play-based, and that allow the children and youth we serve to have a safe place to explore and talk about the thoughts and feelings around their grief. Connecting with other children that have experienced a loss can help them feel less isolated, and allow them to safely share what they are going through. Our team collaborates closely with the Langley School District, and provides grief support and outreach for students in our local schools, in addition to those who access services through our Supportive Program Centre.

Our Adult Bereavement Program continues to grow and develop to accommodate the unique needs of the individuals who access our support and services. In addition to our general loss support groups, we offer a traumatic loss support group for adults who have lost a child to suicide or substance use. These groups are offered twice annually, and can see clients travelling from outside the area to attend, because there are no services like this in their own communities.

The BC Centre for Palliative Care speaks to the importance of creating a Compassionate Community – "a community of people, who feel empowered to engage with, increase their understanding about the experiences of those living with a serious illness, caregiving, dying, and grieving. A place where community members will take an active role in caring for people, assist people to live comfortably in their homes, connect people with support, raise awareness about grief and end of life issues, and develop the capacity of others in the community…" We are grateful to work in a community that actively pursues these goals and believes we all play a role in taking care of each other.

Our Second Story Treasures Thrift Store continues to provide more than 30% of our annual operating revenue. Under the leadership of new store manager, Melanie McDougall, and her team, the store is thriving, and has seen a record year in contributions to the Society. We are grateful for the incredible volunteers, donors and customers who help make this possible.

Our board, staff, and volunteers continue to work on the building of a new free-standing, 15-bed hospice residence for Langley. With final permitting in process, site work will begin soon, and we're excited to be working with the team from Keystone Architects and our contractors, J. Floris & Company, to make this dream a reality for our community. Stay tuned for updates and information on our ceremonial ground-breaking this fall.

The leadership of a strong and engaged board of directors, and the generous support we receive from our donors, community partners and funders, ensure that the Langley Hospice Society is moving forward confidently with a continued focus on developing and delivering client-centred and responsive palliative and bereavement care and support services to meet the growing needs of our community.

Respectfully submitted by
Shannon Todd Booth, Acting/Interim Executive Director

Did you know….the Langley Hospice Society operates on an annual budget of less than $560,000? We want our donors to know that your dollars are well spent – flip through the next few pages and see the impact of these dollars on direct program and service delivery!

Adult Bereavement Support

Over the past year, the Adult Bereavement Program has provided hundreds of sessions to bereaved people seeking support and participating in our programs and services. The services we provide are: one-to-one support, 10-week support groups, loss support groups for grieving adults; Traumatic Loss support groups for parents who have lost a child to suicide or substance use; coffee groups for parents who have lost adult children and for mothers who have lost babies and young children and drop-in coffee mornings in between our structured support groups. In addition, we offer a Grief Wellness Yoga Program, Supportive Steps—a weekly walking group for bereaved adults, Cooking Together, and our annual Coping with the Holidays Workshop. We also connect with other community agencies providing information presentations and grief and loss education and presentations

People are familiar with our services, but how do we actually provide that service to people in a way that helps? We listen; we listen to understand. We provide safety and comfort to people at a very vulnerable time in their lives when it feels like the world has been turned upside down - shattered for some. We build trust by offering confidentiality, acceptance and inclusion. We provide information on grief and how that may affect them, which helps normalize and validate what they are experiencing. We understand that people may want different levels of support, from our 10-week structured groups to the more casual walking groups and Cooking Together evenings, where people come together prepare and cook a meal and sit and eat together. All of these services provide social connection with others with similar losses, which is so important to those who are grieving.

We couldn't provide these services without the support of our amazing volunteers! Thank you to Brenda Singbeil, Ruth Noble, Adrienne Thompson, Lyndsay McIntyre, Marge Johnson, Pat Thebaud, Gabriele Scully, Ennio Gasbarri, Myrna Baker, Manfred Rossdeutscher and Dale Attrell.

From our Cooking Together: Indian Cuisine Evening, Feb/2019 with Guest Hosts Satnam Sekhon & Luki Kang

This is what our services mean to the people we serve:

"It is my safe place where I am accepted for who I am, all my pain, my sadness. Strange but because I can express all of this and not feel judged it helps me cope, feel lighter, and have a sense of joy, something I haven't felt in such a long time."

"Langley Hospice gave me hope when I was in my darkest place."

"I am so grateful to have found you. The walking group started the journey back to healthy coping with a loss, literally one step at a time. Those two and a half years of walking every week with a group of supportive people gave me purpose and a challenge to keep going. Through all imaginable weather conditions, walking with a group was life altering in a gentle way."

"Hospice is a place where people know your deepest pain and accept and care for you. There is something so powerful about that when others can barely talk to you."

"Langley Hospice saved my life - I don't think that you knew that."

"Group was place for all my thoughts and emotions without explaining or fear. Hospice gave me a direction, forward movement or allowed me to just be still/stuck too if that's where I needed to be until I was ready, that was so helpful."

"Thank you for the memory table - listening to others tell about their child and the importance of sharing about our children. Our children's lives mattered; they were loved and cared for, their lives were important and we were proud of them. We need to hold on to this through all the sadness, the guilt, the shame and the stigma. I know this helps with healing my heart."

"It was so good to be able to talk & share with others that you know understand what you're going through and to hear what they say and you think 'yes that is exactly what I'm feeling too'."

"Hospice gave me a place to express my raw emotion and ability to express feelings without worrying about rejection and not feeling safe."

"In group, having other fathers here helped my husband open up and I got to hear how my husband felt, which was good because we are not able to talk about it at home."

"Hospice is my special place where I can talk about my daughter. Even my husband and children don't seem to want to do that anymore."

Child & Youth Bereavement Support

This year, the Child and Youth Bereavement Program continued to expand and offer new and exciting programs and events. We continued to focus on including outdoor and activity-based programming as part of a holistic approach to supporting grieving children and youth. Providing activities and events that encourage children and youth to build connections with others, can help decrease feelings of social isolation and increase their capacity to heal.

Through generous funding from Coast Capital Savings, the Langley Hospice Society was able to host two weekend-long camps for bereaved youth. In June, we spent a sunny weekend in Hope at Camp Kawkawa, where the teens were able to engage in a variety of adventure-based activities including: swimming, water sports, field games, archery, archery tag and riflery. The teens were able to connect with peers and their volunteer leaders, and talk openly about their grief and express how the loss of their special person had affected them.

In October, the youth were able to enjoy a beautiful weekend at Camp Sasamat in Belcarra. Once again, the teens were able to build on their connections with their peers, and challenge themselves by trying new activities such as rock climbing, canoeing, kayaking and the vertical playground.

Camp Chrysalis, our annual summer camp for grieving children each August was magic-themed. Campers were sorted Harry Potter style—into the four Hogwarts houses: Gryffindor, Hufflepuff, Ravenclaw, and Slytherin. Our junior leaders, who are pre-teens and teens from the program, played an integral role in helping out with camp, mentoring their younger peers and running activities. Volunteers from the community were our senior leaders, and did an amazing job supporting the children, running activities and mentoring the junior leaders!

Support groups were offered for children, pre-teens and teens between the ages of 4-18 years old, through our Supportive Programs Centre, which saw our one-to-one support services nearly doubled from the previous year, with a total of 559 one-to-one sessions for children, teens and/or caregivers. School outreach services continue to be in demand, with one-to-one and support groups provided at several local elementary and secondary schools, as well as at the Youth Hub in Langley.

Langley Hospice Society hosted a "Day of The Dead"-themed open house for Children's Grief Awareness Day and our "paint the town blue" initiative in November, inviting the community to learn more about our support services for children and youth. In December, we hosted both a children's and a teens' Christmas event, which included activities such as games, holiday-themed and memorial crafts, a gingerbread house competition, and plenty of fun! We developed a new monthly drop-in program for children aged 4-10, called Kids Connect, which runs the second Wednesday of each month during the school year. This program provides an opportunity for kids to connect with their peers and children's program volunteers! For our pre-teens, we began offering a movie and discussion night, inviting them to think critically about how grief and loss is portrayed in media and how it is both relevant and different from their own experience.

We continue to provide education and outreach to the community, working with the Young at Arts Dance Academy and to the MRI group, as well as presenting in the SD35 Helping Professionals workshop and the Langley Education Wellness Fair. We also offered our LHS Supporting Grieving Children and Teens training, and presented to a group of early childhood educators.

Our Child and Youth Bereavement Program was the grateful recipient of generous grants from Coast Capital Savings Credit Union and the Soroptomist International of the Langleys, as well as receiving funding through Adrienne Thompson, a volunteer and yoga instructor, who generously donated her time to teach classes and to organize her Stretch & Sip Fundraisers which provided funding for some activity-based programming for our youth!

Palliative Support & Langley Hospice Residence

Another year has gone by and our palliative program is still going strong. It is difficult to measure or quantify qualities like compassion, support, healing - I will try to paint a bit of a picture...

"I have to say that this place can heal the soul of many suffering people…" this was written by an out-of-country visitor to the residence many years ago. Many work in the palliative care realm (physicians, nurses, social workers, spiritual health practitioners, pharmacists, and, of course, volunteers), but the latter are the ones that I want to talk about: in the context of the residence being one major part of the palliative program. In addition to the companioning and respite we provide in the community, as well as vigils for the last few days of a person's life.

Volunteers for our palliative support program are required to take the Langley Hospice 30-hour Basic Training over 10 weeks which is available to potential volunteers and interested community members. The training helps participants learn about, and become more comfortable with the subject of death, dying and grief, and in doing so, hope to support others. The training allows for a much deeper look into themselves and how they see dying, death and grief, and can bring self-discovery and skills that can be applied in our daily lives. Participants who choose to become volunteers are supported and provided with ongoing training opportunities to enhance their ability to provide support for patients and families.

Volunteers soon realize that it is not about "moving Mount Everest", but rather that it is the smallest things, done with care—a foot rub, crushing ice, holding hands, bringing a warm blanket…that make a real difference. Maya Angelou says it best: "I've learned that people will forget what you said, people will forget what you did, but people will never forget how you made them feel".

In the last year, 32 participants completed Basic Training – not all of them became volunteers, but all participated in an experience that helps them to no longer push away the talk of death and grief, amongst friends and family. Sadly, we still live in a death-denying society, and it is my hope that eventually this taboo subject will be part of mainstream conversation, and when that happens, we will discover what it teaches best: the preciousness of life and how to live it fully.

What our participants say: "It has been a privilege to learn that death, while inevitable, can be faced gently, kindly and with compassion." "Self-awareness and an increased ability to truly listen will lead me to an improved empathetic support person." "This training not only helped me prepare for volunteering for the palliative program but also has made such an impact in my personal life, dealing with loss and helping myself and those around me to understand the grief process."

A new hospice residence is on the horizon but it is important to mention that in the meantime, amazing compassionate care happens between the walls of an old building that has its limitations. Each patient and family is unique and with the versatility of our volunteers, everyone is served in a meaningful way – honoring the flow of their journey. Patients and their families share with us and trust us in the most vulnerable time of their lives – and that is truly an honour. Our staff and volunteers are committed to maintaining the homelike setting of this somewhat out-of-date residence. With the help of dedicated, knowledgeable volunteers with green thumbs, plants and flowers bring beauty and tranquility to the grounds. With their help, it has been possible to transition smoothly from season to season, keeping the flowers healthy, watered, and trimmed. Squirrels like to get involved impeding on our efforts, competing with us for bulbs; somehow they manage to feed themselves and the planters still come out looking quite wonderful. We have Botanus and Cedar Rim Nursery to thank for their generosity.

Often potential volunteers are cautious, scared, nervous, and questioning; will this be sad, depressing, somber, lacking laughter? There is all of that, but so much more... The volunteering experience is extremely rewarding – in giving we receive, but not only that, when we meet with those we serve - without judgment and with no intention of "fixing" - much healing can occur. Having had the opportunity to train, support and supervise over the years, I have witnessed growth, and a willingness to learn that what is most important is to serve without expectation – then and only then we can discover the beauty and healing effect of being present.

Volunteer Programs

Often when you turn on the news you are inundated with all the negative things that are happening around the world which can be both overwhelming and scary. Within each news report, however, if you look closely, you will often see the people in the background working hard to make our world an extraordinary place. At the Langley Hospice Society, we are incredibly fortunate to attract some of the kindest people that you will ever meet, and I am blessed to get to work with them.

Whenever I meet with a new volunteer, we begin with an interview and orientation process that allows them to learn about the Langley Hospice Society and help them figure out where the best fit will be. Last year, our volunteers gave us the gift of more than 35,500 hours - throughout our programs and services. It's an extraordinary gift, that makes us both humble and grateful, and these hours represent the volunteers that are out in the community demonstrating who the Langley Hospice is and what we stand for.

Volunteers touch everything that we do, from the warm and inviting gardens and grounds of our Supportive Programs Centre, that are lovingly tended by our gardening crew; or our program office, where you are welcomed by our office volunteers. Throughout the week, you can hear the bustle of a children's program activity going on, our caring hearts quilting group, meeting to work on their gifts of love; one of our loss support groups in session, or a yoga class or coffee group – just some of the areas our volunteers touch on.

When you walk in to our thrift store, Second Story Treasures, you instantly notice how clean and inviting the store is. From the friendly cashiers to the 90+ volunteers that work in the back area sorting donations and working their magic, you cannot miss the pride and attention to detail that goes into the store.

Our team has the pleasure to work with a dynamic and engaged volunteer board of directors, and the Palliative Program volunteers. There roles are important and impactful, and I am very fortunate to work with them along with all of our volunteers with some of our special events and other activities. Fundraising committees, logistics crews, décor and dishes, setup to take down, our volunteers are part of it all. These are our volunteers; we are so blessed to have them.

Second Story Treasures Thrift Store

2018/2019 has been a successful year in so many ways here at our Second Story Treasures Thrift Store in Walnut Grove. We feel blessed to have what we believe to be the best volunteers, donors and staff that our community has to offer. Our volunteers continue to inspire us daily with their passionate dedication to the Langley Hospice Society.

The new year brought in a huge influx of donations, in part from hugely successful organizational shows such as Tidying Up with Marie Kondo. Other contributing factors include many of the roadside drop-off bins being removed due to safety concerns, and Metro Vancouver's new initiative, "Think Thrice about Your Clothing", encouraging people to rethink throwing clothing in the landfill. The trend has continued into spring with many clothing donations.

Our Annual Spring Flip was held on Saturday, March 30th - the first time it has been held on a Saturday. The event was a huge success with sales of over $10,000! The day included a barbecue that was hosted by volunteers from the Fort Langley Lions, and all food and drinks were donated by Walnut Grove IGA, Freybe Meats, BunsMaster and Save-On Foods. The Walnut Gate Cobs store also donated treats for our customer appreciation table and Envision Financial donated a big tent for our use for the day, resulting in minimal expenses to us for the event. Customers, volunteers and staff all had a fabulous time. Our Fall Flip, with a Fall Fair theme, is scheduled for Saturday, September 7th, and we are looking forward to it!

A major goal for this year is to reduce our recycling and garbage. We hosted an upcycle event in partnership with The Passionate Home, where customers learned how to refinish furniture with Annie Sloan Chalk Paint; 25 people attended this fun and informative event, and we hope to host another one in the fall. Our team has launched "Super Saturdays", a weekly garage-sale style day, where we feature items that we don't sell every day like sporting goods, pet supplies, tools, and odds and ends. Most departments also put aside sale items for us such as jewelry and linens for $1. We have gained quite a following of new customers on these days, with sales reaching over $2,000.00, and having the added bonus of helping us cut down on recycling and garbage - definitely a win-win!

New 15-Bed Langley Hospice Residence

This past year has seen the Langley Hospice Society reach some significant milestones towards the reality of a new 15-bed Hospice Residence for our community. We are thrilled to report that although the journey has been much slower than we anticipated, due to some detours along the way, we are still very much on course for construction of this important building that will house 15 private rooms and provide access to common areas, the outdoors and other comforts in a home-like environment, to ease the end of life journey for patients and their families.

Major milestones reached during this past year include the completion of our Land Lease and all supporting Agreements with our major funders (Fraser Health and BC Housing); completion and submission of our architectural design plans to the Township of Langley for the building permit and required municipal permits; tendering out to a select group of contractors for construction of the New Residence and; selecting our General Contractor for building the New Residence. We are hopeful that, as long as we do not run into any additional detours, we will be commencing with work on site (52nd Avenue and 219A street in Langley), within the next two months.

With the funds in place to build our new 15-bed hospice residence, the Langley Hospice Society New Residence Fundraising Committee continues to look to the community for support to help us raise the additional $1,000,000 necessary to furnish and outfit the new hospice residence, and truly make our new house – a home for all who enter its doors.

This passionate group of volunteers has seen great success to date, hosting information and fundraising events and receiving support from long-term donors and supporters and are well on their way to reaching their goal. In November of 2018, they hosted the inaugural Glass Half Full, a fundraising and awareness event in partnership with the Fraser Valley Potters Guild and hosted by Harrison Landing, in support of the New Hospice Residence Project. Guests came together to hear guest speaker, Dr. Aaron Cass, Palliative Care Physician at the Langley Hospice Residence, who talked about the impact the new hospice residence and expanded services will have for end-of-life care patients and their families.

We need your help to raise the $1,000,000 necessary to furnish and outfit the new hospice residence and create a homelike environment for all who enter its doors.

Community Engagement & Fundraising

In April 0f 2018, the Langley Hospice Society hosted our 2nd Annual Plates & Glasses at the Fort Langley Community Hall and supported by a number of local businesses including Well Seasoned—a Gourmet Food Store, KIS Consulting, 1 Fish 2 Fish Fresh Seafood Market, Bonetti Meats, and Cobs Bread. Once again, the event sold out and raised $30,000 for our Supportive Program Centre, and confirmed their 2019 date in April.

Our staff and volunteers participated in a number of events and activities to help raise important funds and awareness integral to the development and delivery of the innovative and responsive, palliative and bereavement support programs and services that the Society provides free of charge, for the children, teens, adults and families we serve. Some of these included:

- Butterfly Release at Krause Berry Farms & Estate Winery, held annually in partnership with the Langley Care Foundation and releasing more than 450 painted lady butterflies in memory and in celebration of loved ones.

Bob Hunt & son, Nathaniel

- The West Fine Art Show at the Glass House Estate Winery this past September, hosted by the DeJong family at their South Langley location.

- The Langley Hospice Society was honoured to be recognized at the 2018 Greater Langley Chamber of Commerce Business Excellence Event for the *Community Impact Award (*Non-Profit)

- Paint the Town Blue for Children's Grief Awareness Day – November 15th saw community members turn on a blue lightbulb in many locations, with a banner and other support from the City of Langley, Township of Langley, E.B. Horsman, and Valley Traffic who embraced the initiative that aimed to promote understanding and awareness of the grieving children and teens in our community.

- Our volunteers bundled up to co-host the Fort Langley Historic Kids Run, 5k, 10k & Half Marathon in February with Try Events at the Fort Langley Historic Site. More than 500 runners braved the chilly temperatures, including a number of our Langley Hospice volunteers, like Dale Attrell, who celebrated his 90th birthday a month or two before, completed the 10km, and was one of the top fundraisers.

Dale Attrell & Sue Westhaver

In addition to the support we receive annually from United Way and BC Gaming, this past year the Langley Hospice Society received the following grants to assist in the delivery of some of our innovative, client-centred grief support programs, including:

- A community grant for $16,800 from Community Partnership and Investment at Coast Capital Savings to provide important funding for a Summer Camp Program for Grieving Teens.

- A grant from the Soroptimist International of the Langleys for $2,500, supporting our teen bereavement support and outreach programs.

During the upcoming year, under the leadership of our Langley Hospice Society board of directors, our staff and volunteers are actively engaged in ensuring the sustainability and growth of the programs and services we provide through the Supportive Program Centre, and moving forward with the New 15-Bed Langley Hospice Residence Project, as we continue to reach out for support from the community to help us reach our goals.
